This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

NOTE.

AN unfortunate gap occurs in the Diary of the Corporation between the years 1602 and 1622. It is impossible to explain the loss of this important section of the Town Records, except by the conjecture that it was lost or mislaid during the troubles of the Civil War, or possibly that the volume may have been required to be produced in some litigation in which the Corporation was concerned, and the book never returned to the custody of the Town Clerk.

The deficiency, however, is partly supplied from the Entries in another Manuscript, which condensed and summarized the ordinary Minutes of the transactions of the Corporation, and commences on March 2, 1604.

This Volume is thus described in the Calendar of MSS. of Reading Corporation, drawn up by the Rev. W. D. Macray in 1886, and published in the Eleventh Report, Appendix, part VII, of the Historical Manuscripts Commission, 1888:—[No. xlviii.] "A folio Volume, containing a Register of Elections of Members of the Corporation, and Officers, with notes in the latter part of Leases sealed, &c., from 1603 to 1665."

The Entries in this Volume are copied down to the 30th of September, 1622, when the Diary proper is again resumed.

EDITOR'S PREFACE.

THE Second Volume of the Corporation Diary embraces the period from the first year of James I to the fifth of Charles I, (March, 160$\frac{3}{4}$ — December, 1629.)

As the First Volume ends with October, 1602, and as Volume II does not commence until March 2, 1604, it is evident that a period of sixteen months between these dates is a complete blank, which it is impossible to supply from any other source. This accounts for the fact that no record exists of the death of the Great Queen (March 24, 1603), nor of the Proclamation in this Town of the Accession of James I to the Throne.

We have before mentioned (see Note) that the entire portion of the MS. Diary of the Corporation, which is missing, extends from Oct. 1602 to Sept. 1622; but, with the exception above stated, most of the gap has been fortunately supplied by another document, entitled "The Register of the Nomynation, Election, Contynuaunce and Succession of the Mayor and Burgesses of the Boroughe of Readinge, [&c.]" From this source we have been able almost to fill in the missing link, resuming the Diary proper in October, 1622.

It is much to be regretted that this brief "Register" or Summary was chiefly used for the financial affairs of the Corporation and, therefore, that many political events of that period received no notice. No references occur to the early years of the Stuart dynasty, or to the death of Henry, Prince of Wales (the young "Marcellus" of his day), though there is an allusion on page 52 to the marriage of the Princess Royal, Elizabeth of Bohemia. We are, however, able to trace very clearly the continuity of Municipal Government and the gradual development of the Town in commercial importance and prosperity.

A considerable impulse was given to the extension of the Town by the Charter of Queen Elizabeth, and by the increase of trade which naturally followed the enlargement of Municipal liberties. We may gather the increasing prosperity of the inhabitants from the busy activity of the Markets and Fairs, from the large number of Victuallers and Inns, and from the dignity with which the offices of the Mayor and Capital Burgesses were regarded.

In the erection of new tenements the Town seems to have expanded but slowly. The houses were, for the most part, densely congregated within a narrow area, and on an examination of Speed's map, A.D. 1611, it will be seen how small a space was really covered by the low and unsanitary dwellings of the trading population.

The Analytical Table of Contents will furnish a convenient reference to all matters connected with the Civil Government, Trade and Social condition of the Town during the period covered by this Volume.

Facsimiles of pages 253 and 288 of the MS. Diary have been inserted, to face pages 351 and 387 of this Volume. They may be interesting, as illustrative of the style and handwriting of the period.

The informacion of Richard Markham.

Saith that about the ij of Aprill last past, in the night tyme, the locke of his sellor dore was pickt open and locked agayne, and then he missed iiij^or^ peices of girt webbe.

Afterwardes upon Good Friday, 11° Aprilis, in the night tyme, his sellor dore was agayne pickt open and lockt agayne, and then he lost iiij^or^ peices of girt webb, iij endes or haulf roles of tobacco, one rydinge coate, color grenishe, and ij or iij cheeses; and he verily thinketh and is perswaded that [blank] Saunders, an idle rogue in the towne, is he that hath robbed me of theise thinges.

1. The cause of his suspition is for that he knoweth he sould the same iiij^or^ peices of girt webb first stollen to one John George, a sadler, a neighbor, 2. and that upon Easter daye, the xiijth of Aprill followeinge, the said Saunders and one Richard Tewe in a hollowe tree nere the towne, found the same coate, ij cheeses, iiij^or^ peices of girt webb, and iij endes of tobacco, carryed them home and disposed of the greatest parte thereof at their pleasure.

The examynacion of Alexander Lacye, alias Saunders, of Readinge.

[Suspensus fuit ad Assisas, in margin.] Saith that sithence he was from his Mr. Feild ij yeres he hath wrought for his livinge in the towne, saith that about a weeke before Easter last he did sell to John George, a sadler in Readinge, a bundle of girt webb in 4 peices for ij*s.* vj*d.*, whiche 4 peices of girt webbe he found in the highwaye, called Pangbo[rne] lane, nere Shipcoate barne, in Reading, but noe company nor parteners.

Saith alsoe that upon Easter daye towardes night, a wenche directed one Richard Tewe to a hollowe tree nere Shipcoat barne, where he and this Examynate found a riding coate, ij cheeses, and iij peices of tobacco, and a bundle of girt webbe all in the tree, and the said Richard Tewe in the eveninge did fetche and carry awaye all those thinges, and this Examynate had but haulf a cheese and xij*d.* in money of the said Richard Tewe for his part, (R. and he carryed awaye the tobacco first at the fyndinge). Sent to gaole.

Saith that uppon Easter daye last in the afternoone he walkinge into the feildes in a close called Shipcotefeild, at the gate, there was ij wenches in the feild, and as he was there with his children, the wenches did espye a peice of cloth hanginge fourth of a hollowe tree, and then the said Sanders came presently after him and did see the same thinges and desired this Examinate to see what it was, and then they found in the tree an old ridinge coate, ij cheeses, j peice of tobacco, and j bundle of girt webb, conteyning 4 peices.

And this Examinate did then take awaye the peice of tobacco and j cheese, and the said Saunders did then take away the other cheise and did then hide the coate and the girt webb in the strawe nere the place.

And afterwardes, about 4 or 5 dayes after, this Examinate in the evening did goe to the place and found the coate and girt webbe and did take it awaye with him, the sayd Saunders beinge in the hospitall, he sould haulf a pound and a quarter of it at Pangborne to Richard Holmes and Raph Willys after the rate of 6*s.* 8*d.* per li.; and haulf a pound to the aquavite man Huling for ij*s.*, xij*d.* more to William Lymboe, and the rest the Constable had, vizt. dim. li.

John Prynce sold the girt webb for this Examinate.

And had noe acquaintaunce with Saunders before this tyme.

John Smyth of Shipton Mallard in the county of Somersett, cordwever, complaineth that one John Potter of Reding hath cheated him of x*s.* at Wantage fayre uppon Monday last past in playeing togither in a vitling house with false dyce, beginning to play for j pot of bere and soe by degrees for more. Further saith that the cause of this Complainantes being at Wantage faire was this; vizt. to seek for and to apprehend the bodyes of Thomas Kempe, Bartholomew Hopkyns and Phillip Kent, by vertue of my Lord Cheiffe Justyce's warrant, for cheating Roger Walter of five poundes od money, whiche warrant was dated 15° Junii 1622; and was to holde and contynue in force but 3 monethes next after the date and noe longer.

William Veruyll of Newberye went in this Complainantes company.

This Complainant hath byn acquaynted with the said John Potter a long tyme, yea, ever synce he had understanding, for he knewe his father many yeres, but mett with him at Wantage accidentally without any forknowledge one of another's being there, and that the other cuntryman whiche Potter did cheat of 8*s.* was in the house before this Examinate came thither to his remembrance and did joyne parteners with this Examinate, but this Examinate did not knowe what money the stranger had in his purse, &c. Sent to the house of correccion.

John Potter.

Saith that he hath knowne the said John Smyth this twelmoneth or there aboutes by means of his coming to this Examinate's father's. And this Examinate saith that he did intend to goe to Wantage faire, and upon the said daye, as he was goeing thither he by reason of the wett wether, he stayd at Blewberye and there mett in the house of one Nicholas Humfrey, being a vitling house, with the said John Smyth and with ij Londyners, whose names he knoweth not, and there suppt altogither (but had noe playe there) and the next morning being Wantage faire daye they went awaye towardes Wantage, but not all togither in the waie [?], yett mett in Wantage streete, and in the companye of the said John Smyth there was one stranger, not knowen to this Examinate, and they went then to a vitling house to drinke and there to parte the strife, whoe should paye for the bere. The said John Smyth drewe fourth 3 dyce and would have the dyce to decyde the controversye by casting ten or above upon wager of wynninge or losing the beere. And to play they went, the stranger standing by; and it happened that Jhon Smyth did wyn;

and then upon further agreamentes they played the second 3 and 4 tymes, 3 groates to one, with this Examinate, both John Smyth and the stranger; and they did wyn all, and this Examinate did loose; and then they played agayne 3*s.* to one, and the stranger alsoe: and then this Examinate did wyn, and after that they played double, vizt. vj*s.* to ij*s.*, and this Examinate did wyn: and havinge gotten his owne money agayne and 18*s.* over and above he gave over and left the play.

[p. 44.] Ellyn Potter, the wief of John Potter.

Saith she hath knowne the said John Smyth a yere or thereaboutes by meanes of his cominge to her father Potter's house; and the last tyme she did see him was about the tyme of Way Hill faire, when the said John Smyth came and would perswade her husband to goe to Way Hill faire and to the Vize and said he should not lacke money; but her husband to her knowledge did not goe to Way Hill nor to the Vize.

And nowe this last Wensdaye the said John Smyth came to her husband for the x*s.* he woone of him at Wantage faire and for haulf the 8*s.* he woone of the cuntryman which was in their company at Wantage, affirming the cuntry hinde had 40*s.* in his purse, whiche he might have woon if he had not geven over, if he had byn wise.

And further said that the said John Smyth had a counter like a peice of gould, whiche, if her husband had playd, he would have tempted or swetened the mouth of the said cuntry man therewith, to have made him playe further.

And that he came for his money, for that he had byn like to have byn in trouble about that money if he had not changed his bond at Wantage, and other suche circumstances.

The complaynt of Pawle Cox, servant to Mr. Martyn Tichborne of Ufton: sayeinge uppon his [oath].

That on Wensdaye night last past his master's dwelling house was broken open in the night tyme by personnes unknowne, and there hence was stollen and carryed awaye divers particular goodes, vizt. a horseman's coate, sad and medley colour and laced, a canvas table-cloth, ix flexen napkyns, viij canvas table clothes and many other thinges mencioned in a note upon the file, &c., some of his master's, and some of his and other servantes.

[Ad Assisas, in margin.] Pawle Cox cognovit se debere domino Regi xl*li.* ad prosequendum versus 3 homines jacentes [?] in gaola ad proximas Assisas, etc.

The complaint of Richard Wylder, of Mighells.

Saith that on Wensdaye night last past his dwellinge house at Mighells was broken by persones unknowne to him, whiche did enter and stele and carryed awaye fourth of his house one cloke, one paire of breches, one wascote, one smocke without sleves, j pewter platter, iij or iiij girdles, ij bandes and j blacke hatt, and some other thinges he cannott name, presently seeinge the cloke and breeches and j red girdle in the Mayor's house, whiche were taken uppon or in the handes of iij vagrant persons then attached by the constables at Reding, challendged them and saith that cloke, breches and j girdle were his goodes whiche were stollen out of his house that Wensdaye night.

Richard Wylder cognovit se debere dicto domino Regi 40*li.* ad prosequendum versus omnes illos tres homines ad proximas Assisas.

John Wimpey of Readinge, wyer-drawer, saith that yesterday the xvj^th of October he did helpe the wydowe Grey's daughter dwelling next dore to his father to bargayne and buy a parcell of brused pewter weighing 8*li.* and quarter, being offered to sell at her shoppe, the man that sold the pewter was a stranger clothed in a grene paire of stockyns, a paire of stuffe breches, with a black hatt, and seeinge one Henry Chambers, then standinge in the Mayor's house, said he was the man.

Cognovit se debere domino Regi x*li.* ad dandum evidenciam ad proximas Assisas.

Richard Millington, servant to William Wympye, did then see that man, then in presens of the Mayor and Constables, at the wydowe Grey's shoppe sellinge that pewter, viz[t]. 3 dishes, j pewter plate, j great platter and 3 other dishes for iiij*s.* vj*d.*, all brused and defaced; cognovit se debere x*s.* ad dandum evidenciam.

[Ad Assisas, in margin.] Whiche pewter Mr. Tichburne's man challendged to be his master's and had it.

[p. 47.] 17° Octobris 1623.

The confession of Thomas Chambers, one of the iiij[or] men whiche the Constables apprehended at the house of William Symons.

Beinge examyned, saith that he alwayes lived at Bridgewater in the countye of Somersett by the trade of linnen wever untill about midsomer last past and then travelinge the cuntry to seeke worke, and cominge to Oxford he did there worke at his trade untill about a moneth past; and from thence he went with one John Parsons into Wilteshere to seeke worke and fynding none he was goeinge towardes Surrey; and on Mondaye night last past lodged within vij or viij myles of Hartley Rowe, and on Tuesdaye night last he lodged nere Hartley rowe, on Wensdaye he came towardes Reding and laye that night in a barne at a husbandman's house not knowinge the place, within 4 myles of Readinge, havinge noe company with him, and on Thursdaye last about xij or j of the clocke he came into Readinge to an alehouse there, beinge the house of one Symons (havinge noe company), and there by chaunce did meete with his brother Henry Chambers whome he had not seene a long tyme; and as to the other ij men then in the alehouse he had never seene them before; and beinge demaunded if he and one of the other men taken with him in the alehouse were not yesterdaye begginge or asking relief in the parishes of Sulhampstede and Ufton, 4 or 5 myles out of Reding, saith he was not there, nor had any company, the yesterdaye being Wensdaye, neither did this Examynate bringe any goodes into the alehouse, but onely a horseman's coate and one white hatt with a broad brym, whiche he had and bought the last weeke of a traveler goeinge towardes London, and paid for them v*s.* iiij*d.*, and the white hatt he did nowe sell to his hostes. Comytted to gaole.

Pawle Cox, complainant, servant to Mr. Tichburne, standing by, said the horseman's coate was his master's, the white hatt is his, and the hatt band his master's.

The confession of Henry Chambers, another of the iiij^{or} men attached by the Constables.

Beinge examyned, saith that he was borne and brought uppe in Bridgwater in the county of Somersett and there did live in his trade of a lynnen wever untill about haulf a yere last past, and then travelled the cuntry to seeke worke, and upon Monday last lodged at a place called Newenham, and Tuesdaye night at or nere Wallingford and from thence on Wensday on Wensdaye [sic] he lodged in a barne at Blountes Court, and from thence he came Thursdaye, vizt. yesterdaye, to Readinge and there goeinge into one Symons his house (beinge an alehouse) about xij or one of the clocke in the after noone and there by chaunce mett with his brother Thomas Chambers whome he had not seene in 3 quarters of a yere before: and in his brother's company there was another man in russett clothes whiche this Examinate did not knowe; and denyeth that he was in any place or parishe in Berkshiere upon Wensdaye begging; and further saith that he brought not any goodes into the said alehowse (savinge a lynnen bagg empty). Sent to gaole.

[p. 48.] The confession of John Annesley.

Saith he late dwelt at Uckfeild within vj myles of Lewes and there lived by his trade of a fustyan wever, untill about a moneth past, then he went from thence to Salisburye to a brother he hath there and from thence he travelled the cuntry to seeke worke; on Sundaye last he came to Wallingford and there lodged at an alehouse, called the Greene Tree, Sondaye night and Mondaye night, and one Tuesdaye he travelled the country and came to Speneham Land by Newbery and there lodged Tuesday night and Wensday night, but he knowethe not his hoste's name, neither can remember what signe; and on Thursdaye, vizt. yesterdaye, he came from thence about 3 or 4 of the clocke in the morninge to Theale and soe to Readinge, to one Symons' house, an alehouse, and brought into the house with him a cloake, a paire of breches, one table napkin, one towell, one old wallett and 3 or 4 knyves, whiche cloake he bought of a traveller in the way, unknowne to him, and paid for it iij*s*. iiij*d*., and bought of the same traveller the breeches and paid for them xviij*d.*, and the napkyn and towell he bought of the same man and paid but iiij*d.* for them both, and the knyves he found; stayd not in the cuntry nor did not aske relief in the citie.

And beinge examined what company, saith none: and never did see nor had any acquayntance with the other iij men whiche were found in the said alehouse untill yesterdaye in the afternoone. Sent to the gaole.

Pawle Cox claymed the black knyfe to be his, all the pewter dishes his master's, the napkyns and strayning cloth his master's, that cloke and the breches Richard Wylder's.

The confession of Alice Symons, wief of William Symons.

Saith that the blacke fellowe, vizt. Tho. Johnson, came to their house on Wensday last in the afternoone, and lodged there all that night.

The other 3 strangers came thither Thursday last about x or xj a clocke, ij at the first, and the tall man, vizt. John Annesley, came after them; the ij men brought a little fardell of some thinges in a lynnen bagg, but what thinges she knoweth not.

The tall man had a cloke and one or the other a horseman's coate; she bought of the said Thomas Chambers a white hat for iij*s.*; a paire of breches and ij napkyns of the tall man for iij*s.*; she receyved nothinge ells of them.

Sisley Dolman did see all those 3 men at Weyhill fayre, whiche did cause her to drinke with them at Symons' house on Thursday last.

The confession of Agnes Gregorye, of the parishe of Rippon in the county of York, spinster.

Saith that she dwelt last of all in Aldersgate Streete with Mr. Gabryell Perinshey, a coachmaker, in London, almost about two yeres at Michellmas last past, and then travelled the cuntry, and went to Thame and Oxford to seeke service, and at Oxford she lived with a poore woman untill Christmas, and then she went from thence to Henley, and havinge a cuntryman at the Lady Forster's, nere Henley, she did stay and rest betwixt the Lady Forster's house and one Noble's, in Henley; she spent ij or iij monethes, and then after at the said Noble's house; the man called Hamshier Will came and sould certen bondes, and by stayeing there a while grewe acquaynted with her, and from thence he perswaded her to goe with him, about a sixe weekes past; and then they went togither to Wallingford and there he left her at the house called the White Horse, and there she stayd a weeke or thereaboutes; and then he came to Wallingford to her, and then he brought to her a grey peticoate, iij paire of sheetes, j paire flexen, and the other coarse cloth, and j paire of canvas sheetes, and ij bockram shirtes and nothinge ells at that tyme, and sould the paire flexen sheetes to the hostes of the house ; and the rest he sold in the towne, but to whome she knoweth not ; and the next weeke he went awaye and willed her to goe to Henley agayne and he would come to her ; and that weeke he came to her to Henley to the said Noble's house, and then he brought with him vj peices of pewter, vizt. 3 platters, ij pottingers and j quart pott ; all whiche he carryed awaye ; but where he sold them she cannott tell ; stayeing there Saturdaye and Sondaye ; and on Mondaye he and Thomas Johnson went awaye there hence to Maydenhead; and nere Maydenhed he went from her, and willed her to goe to Winsor to the signe of the Eagle, and there he would come to her on Saturdaye night; and that Saturdaye night they did meete there at that house, and then he brought with him a dussen peices of pewter, vizt. all platters, and iij pewter spoones, and nothinge ells, and he sold all that pewter in the towne, but to whome she cannott tell, for he carryed fourth unknowne to her; and they stayd at Winsor that Saturday night and Sondaye night.

And on the Mondaye they went awaye togither towardes the Lady Harbartes, and not farr from thence he and his partener did resolve to have a house where they did thinke to have good store of money; for there was but an old man, an old woman and a mayd about the house; it was iij or iiij^or^ myles from the Ladyes house, and they laye a weeke about that, but could not prevaile, and at the weekes end they returned backe agayne to Maydenhead, to the White Horse at Maydenhead, where they willed this Examinate to meete them, and she went thither on Fridaye, and on Saturdaye they came thither and stayd not there but the drinking of a pott of bere.

And then they sent her to Henley to her host, Noble's, and then upon Friday followeing they both came to the said Noble's house; and then they brought nothing but money to the value of xx*s.* whiche she sawe tolde, and they then said they had it at house, and then they stayd there altogither untill Sondaye; and then the two men went awaye as they said into Berkshiere, to one wydowe Glover's, but where she knoweth not, and from thence they tooke some brasse or pewter, and coming from thence, being pursued, they left the goodes and lost it, and being taken uppe by some neighbours and searche being made in Henley, it was reported by her hostes that the woman had her goodes agayne, and this Examinate saith that she hard them saye that the said goodwife Glover had a sonne named Henry Glover of the same trade they were of, and had rob'd his mother once or twise before.

[p. 51.] And further she saith that, in that night in whiche they had robbed the wydowe Glover, hue and crye being made, they two men, vizt. Hamshiere Will and Thomas Johnson, went from Noble's house about the breake of the daye, and she went with them at that tyme; and they went altogither into Berkshiere, by the horsboate over the water and, as she thinketh, to the place called Pangborne, and she lodged there all that night, and they went awaye and apoynted her to meete them at the grene tree in Wallingford, and accordingly she went thither; and upon Friday followeing they came thither and brought money with them to the value of 40*s*., as they said, but noe other goodes, and they staid there all that Friday night, Saturdaye and Sondaye.

And then on Mondaye they went all togither to Henley to the said Noble's house, and there the two men beinge drunke they fell out in partinge[7] of their money, and then the said Thomas Johnson went awaye from Will, leavinge Hamshiere Will and this Examinate at Henley; and this Examinate and Hampshiere Will stayd there all that weeke, and then the said Will gave . . . . . : and then uppon Sondaye the said Will and this Examinate came from Henley to Readinge to one Green's house, a smythe, the signe of the Horshooe in the highwaye, and there stayd but a while, and then they went from thence towardes Twiford, and in the waye they mett with one Mathewe Hobbes, a pedler, carryeing a packe, and iij other lusty younge men in his company, with Hobs his wief and another woman that carryed Hobbes childe; and they havinge some speches one with another they directed the said Hampshere Will and this Examinate to goe to the house of one Bushnell, an alehouse in Earley, nere the highwaye: and the said Hobbes and his company went towardes Readinge, but before they parted they agreed to meete all at Wokingham, at the signe of the Chopping Knife, by eleven of the clocke on Mondaye, the next daye, intendinge and agreeinge from thence to goe into Hampshiere to one house where the said William had dwelt, and thence he would bringe them to a hundred poundes in money, and Hobbes said he knewe of a house towardes Weyhill where he was sure to have money, but what store he could not tell. Nowe, by reason this Monday morninge proovinge soe wett, theise parties did not meete, and in the afternoone the said Wille and this Examinate stayeing at Bushnell's in Earley, where they lodged, untill ij or iij a clocke, returneth towardes Reading and there were presently attached.

Memorandum, that the said Hampshier Wille, before this last weeke, had and did use to weare a horseman's coate, colour grey, and did use to were a sword, and uppon Saturday last in Fillis Court, in or nere Henley, did enterteyne a boye into his company; and that Saturdaye night, the said Wille being drunke, the said

[p. 110.] 26° Octobris, 1624.

Redmond Jerrald, servant to Mr. Thomas Brocas, of Beroper, in com. Southampton.

Saith that the silver bason is the goodes of Mr. Andrewe Pawlett, sometymes livinge at Beroper, and sometymes at London, left the silver bason with him to lay to pawn, to borrowe some money for his use, for ij or iij monethes.

Edward Bagley affirmeth that he knoweth he hath served Mr. Thomas Brocas a long tyme and in good creditt, but as touching the silver basen he can say nothinge, but verely beleveth he is an honest man.

Thomas Hatton saith that the Examinate did saye he had this basen a moneth or more in his handes, and was to borrowe 40 or 50*s.*, or more or lesse, at his pleasure.

There are divers hues and cryes for plate and other thinges late stollen.

This Examinate denyeth to make knowne where his Master's chamber is in London, or where Mr. Andrewe Pawlette's chamber is. Stayed upon suspicion.

Thomas Hatton, the gould-smyth, brought the partie in question and Mr. Bowden, for they had lettres that the Lady Kingesmyll was robbd and lost muche plate; afterwardes the said Jerrold was discharged by lettres from Mistris Mary Pawlett and Mr. Thomas Brocas, sent to Edward Bagley and John Jenyns.

[p. 117.] 5° die Januarii, 1624. Coram Willelmo Maulthus, Majore, et Edwardo Clerke, Scenescallo.

Richard Lamphier, late servant or apprentice to Valentine Skeate, saith:

That when he was there dwellinge, there used to his master's house one Mathewe Hobbes, otherwise called Allen, a tall young man, with a flexen haire, and there was another little fellowe, called Dallicott, whoe had formerly byn his master's prisoner, whiche came into his master's house with the said Hobbes at that tyme, vizt. about all Saintes last past; and at that tyme there was another elder man that was with them; and they did use to come in by the back gate, and when they were there, they did spend like gentlemen and not as pedlers. Mathewe Hobbes and his mother did use to carry a packe, and sometymes the woman had a girle or two; and the elder man was there a weeke before in very base apparrell, and within a weeke he was apparrelled like a gente, with gold lace.

Andrewe Borman saith:

That Mathewe Hobbes alias Allen saith, upon [blank] the [blank] of [blank] last, said to this Informante that he had some plate to sell and would have this Examinate to helpe him to v*li.* in money or more; and that he would sell it for 14 groates an ounze; this Examinate bid him but 3*s.* an ounze; and that the said Mathewe told him he should have 30 or 40 poundes worth of plate of him at that rate, and that at night he would bringe it downe to this Complainantes house; and that the plate was all melted, saving one beker; and the next daye this Examinate expectinge the coming of the said Mathewe with the plate, presently soe soone as he was come, not sheweing any plate, there came in one Richard Prynce, whiche formerly the daye before had byn in company with the said Hobbes, and amongest other speches the said Prynce said to the said Hobbes, "be you gone, you are cloyd;" and then the said Mathewe Hobbes promised to bringe the plate downe that night to this Examinate's house, [p. 118] but did not; And the same daye a woman, whiche he thinketh was mother to the said Mathewe Hobbes, came to this Examinate willing him to meete them at the Ort stile and there he should have the plate as was agreed; and this Examinate saith that Richard Prynce said that the said Mathewe Hobbes gave him a sute of apparell; and that morninge the said Prynce was at breakfast with them at their hoste's, Valentyne's.

Richard Prynce saith:

That he hath byn acquaynted with Mathewe Hobbes 5, 6 or 7 yeres, by reason that he, being servant to the jaylor, the said Mathewe, father and mother, were in the gaole at Reding; and that he never sawe the said Mathewe Hobbes theise ij yeres untill the last tyme, whiche was about All Saintes last past, and then one Richard Lamphier told this Examinate that Mathewe Hobbes and one Neighbour, an elder man of his acquayntance, were at his Mr. Valentyne's, whiche Neighbour was newly clothed in a newe sute of apparrell, layd on with gould lace; and the said Mathewe Hobbes being sett out of Counter caused this Examinate to eate and drinke with him and his friend at their host Valentyne's, and that the said Mathewe did geve this Examinate an old pare of breches and a shirte; and that he, hearing by goodman Nashe that the said Mathewe Hobbes had offred plate to sell to Andrewe Borman, this Examinate went thither and questyoned the said Hobbes about it, and said "be gone[8], you are cloyed." Prynce sent to Counter.

But the same night that her sonne-in-lawe came home, there came a little fellowe to her house in the eveninge, as they were at supper, to hire this Examinate to washe a shirte and bond for him, whiche fellowe had a horseman's coate, but what beard she remembreth not; neither did she see or knowe of any plate broken or wholle he had in her house in the towne; saith she did not goe with the said stranger to any place nor did not knowe where he lodged, but denyeth all the questions in every respect, and that she knoweth not any the parties named to her, nor any of their busynes. Mathewe Hobbes, alias Allen, Suzan Hobbes and Dallicott.

[Postea, 29° Jan. 1624, in margin.] Saith she was called to goodman Skeate's by a boy, in the darke eveninge, to come thither, and she came in the morning; and the girle did see her in the chamber with the fellowes and was there with her and they did will her to saye that they gave her . . . . . see what long Will and Dallicot lyeing in their bed did deliver to this Examinate, vizt. two silver plates bowed togither, parcell of that whiche they tooke her over night, for whiche ij plates she brought xxij*s.* and tooke it to goodwife Hobbs at Valentine Skeate's house, [vide postea, in margin.] The girle did fetche it from the oven, and brought it into the chamber, to deliver it to them lyeing in their bedd, rapt in a blacke cloth.

[p. 121.] Thomas Hatton:

[Eodem die, in margin.] Saith he bought noe silver plate, broken nor wholle, synce Michaellmas, neither was any offred to him to sell or to peice by any man, (but onely one silver basen, which this Examinate brought in question before the Mayor, whoe was informed of the true owner thereof in good tyme;) neither doth he knowe Mathewe Hobbes, alias Allen, a pedler, nor Christofer Dallicott, a pedler.

Mr. John Dewell:

Saith that about 8 weekes past Mr. Valentine Skeate brought a stranger to his shoppe and there bought a peice of greene medley cloth to make a sute for that stranger, for whiche he was then paid, but the name of that partie this Examinate knoweth not.

Castell Seymour, taylor:

Saith that about the 5th of November last Mr. Valentine brought a customer to have a sute of apparrell made fourthwith, whiche sute, viz[1]. dublett and hose of a grene, medley-colord cloth, bought at Mr. Dewell's, and the hose were laced with ij gould laces, and he brought a cloke to have newe lace sett upon it; and uppon Sonday this Examinate carryed the said apparell to Valentyne Skeate's, where his customer was in company of two other men and an old woman; the woman was mother to one of those men, and the name of the lesser man was called Kytt; and the said customer paid this Examinate for his worke 7s., in a backe[2] chamber, where they were merry and jovall.

Valentine Skeate saith:

That goodwife Dorey came to his house when the said Hobbes and the rest were at his house, but whether she did eat or drinke with them, yea or noe, he knoweth not, or had any conference with them or not; and that Hobbes, Dallicourt and Chambers, and Hobbs' mother, came into his house altogither by daye, about Hollontyde; and that they were not usuall guestes to him; and that they lodged the Tuesday night in his house, and went awaye Wensdaye morninge about 7 or 8 of the clocke, but Dallicourt was gone before, for he stayd there but the first night; flatly denyeth that he knewe not, nor heard of any plate they had or brought into his house. They went all awaye on Saturday morning and came agayne on Sondaye morning; stayd there that night; Mondaye night in Counter.

Sisley Doman, spinster, saith that about [blank] last she was at Valentyne Skeate's house in company with Mathewe Allen, Christofer Dallicourt and a tall fellowe called Will Ballard, and did drinke with them there and they would have had her to have stayde and eate some pudding, but she did not stay with them; willed to looke to speake the truth and speake the truth at the next tyme.

Amye Skeate, the wife of Valentine Skeate:

Saith that Mathewe Allen, alias Hobbes, Christofer Dallicourt and William Ballard, and the old men (?) had used to their house; that she did never see any plate brought into her house, rapt uppe in a blacke cloth, or otherwise, at any tyme by them or any of them; nor never see any plate they had there; and that she did never send for the widowe Dorey to come to her house, to come to theise persons, or any of them, but she hath seene her goe uppe to them into their chamber in her house, but she never did intrete, or knowe of any thing she sold for them; goodwife Hobbes, Dallicort nor any of the other, did never geve or deliver any peices of silver to this Examinate, nor she never did deliver any silver to goodwief Dorey to sell; she knoweth not of any silver spoone geven by William Ballard to her grandchildren, but what gloves or girdles, he gave her, she cannot tell; neither did she ever see wydowe Dorey bringe or deliver any moneye for anything she did sell or pawne for them or any of them.

p. 125. [Eodem die, in margin.] Amye Jacobb saith she knoweth William Ballard whoe used lately to her grandfather's house, and she knoweth Dallicourt and William, for they did lodge togither in one bedd; she did never call or goe for wydowe Dorey to come to them; nor she remembreth not that she was at any tyme in any chamber of theirs; she did never take or laye uppe anythinge for them; she did fetche nothinge for any of them into their chamber, but vitayles; they did never geve her any gloves, girdle or silver spoone.

Postea, 29° Januarii, 1624.

Wydowe Dorey further saith:

That she at Valentyne Skeate's house and in the kitchen did receave of William Ballard and Dallicort an ewer broken in 3 peices, with armes upon it, 8 silver spoones with a colte's foote, ij silver barrell tuns (?) with the armes scraped out, whiche she pawned for 3*li.* 2*s.* to goodwife Evens, a water man's wief; whiche 3*li.* 2*s.* she paid to them in the Hall, and for her paynes she had of them 2*s.* and 12*d.*; and afterwardes this Examinate required of them for the rest of their spoones, and they said they were gone; and they were at variance within themselves for one spoone whiche one of them had done awaye; [nota, in margin] and at the first when the girle brought uppe the packe to them in their chamber, it ratled, and when they had taken to her the two plates to sell, they laid the rest into their bedd, and afterwardes in the kitchen they tooke her the rest above-mencioned.

And afterwardes, in a little while, goodwife Skeate tooke this Examinate peices of broken plate, whiche she sold for 3*s.* to the gold smythe's wief, and she tooke goodwief Skeate but 18*d.* and she herself had 26*d.* and a lofe of 2*d.*, and goodwief Skeat said to this Examinate that old goodwife Hobbes gave it her for some victualls due to her whilest they were there.

[p. 126.] 29° Januarii, 1624, eodem die preantea.

Rebecca Evans saith that she lent to goodwife Dorey iiij*li.* ij*s.* uppon the plate whiche she, hearinge the troubles that many people were in about plate, caused her daughter Marye Griffen to cast it awaye into a ditche, and upon searche her daughter made it knowne to Mr. Blinkorne, and fetcht it at the first demaund.

The plate did wey 80 ounzes, being brused, broken and somethinge fowle and dirtye; ij brused plates with the Duke's armes, 8 spoones with colte's feete, ij silver barrell tuns, and a broken ewer, defaced. Delivered to Mr. Blinkorne.

14° Maii, 1625.

Uppon Wensdaye last, beinge xj° Maii, 1625, there was hue and crye after suspitious persons that had stollen a white cloth fourth of a wayne at Thacham.

14° Maii, 1625. There was taken at Valentyne Skeate's house in Reding, by the constables, Richard Pearce and his wief, suspitious persones, and in a baskett of theirs there was found and taken a peice of white broad cloth of 3 yardes, 3 quarters, by measure.

Th' examynacion of Richard Pearce.

Saith he dwelleth in Stoe, in comitatu Gloucest', and there liveth by the trade of an imbroderer, and there hath dwelt and in the hande xv yeres or more, and about a moneth past he and his wief went from thence to London and to Debtford, and there stayed some 4 or 5 dayes, and from thence returned into Willtes to Highworth, to sell drawne workes, and travelled the cuntrye to sell suche wares, and uppon Wensdaye last was at the Devizes, and from thence to Newberye, and there stayed Thursdaye and Fridaye, and from thence this Saturdaye he and his wief and a young man whiche lodged at John Reade's house came to Reding, the young man first, and they after him, to the said Valentine Skeate's house. The young man's name is George, but what more he knoweth not, and what is become of him this Examinate knoweth not.

And as touching the cloth, saith his wief had it of the said young man called George, in the way betwene Hungerford and Newberye, but upon what termes, or to what purpose he knoweth not, and he and his wief came into this towne at night, intendinge to lodge, and to-morrowe to go to Missendon in Bucks. Commytted to gaole.

[p. 141.] Th'examynacion of George Harford.

Saith he dwelleth at St. Albons, in Hartfordshiere, and there liveth by the trade of a poulter, as servant to Robert Soberly, of St. Albons.

Saith he hath byn at Bristowe, and came from thence on Tuesday last, and on[4] Wensdaye he lodged at Marleboroughe, and from thence upon Thursday last he came to Newberye, and in the waye he overtooke a man and a wooman with a basket, and they lodged at the house of Mr. Read; and the last night he lodged at Mr. Rede's (?), and from thence he came to Reading to Mr. Valentyne's. He had no company in all his travell from Bristowe to Newberye, nor to Reading; he knoweth not Richard Pearce, nor his wief, nor never sawe them, nor either of them untill he came to Mr. Valentyne's: he was not in their companye at Mr. Reade's in Newberye. He came into this towne about sunsett, intending to lodge here, and to be gone towardes St. Albons the morowe afterwardes, 16° Maii; re-examyned, ut in proxima pagina. Sent to gaole.

[Assises, in margin.] Th'informacion of Oswald Northwey of Thacham.

Saith that Mondaye, the 9th of this Maye, one wayne, laden with white cloth, came into his house and there lodgede, and that night his stable wall was broken; one white broad cloth, value v*li.* was stollen and carryed awaye, the wrapper of the cart and the cart lyne was cutt, the cloth was Thomas Coleborne['s] of Wiltes, clothier, and xj cheeses taken fourth of another wayne.

lost one payre of cloth breches of sad kersey cloth, one jerkyn of the same, one wascote lynsey wolsey, one black hatt, one horseman's coate, grenishe color, two red peticotes, one woollen wascote, one grene sary aperne, one cipres hat bond, and a payre of yellowe garters. Nihil ad hoc per predictum Ricardum Richardes factum fuit.

[Ad Assisas, in margin.] The confession of Roger Lee, taken at Reading.

Saith he dwelleth at Basingstoke, and liveth there by the trade of a weaver, and came there hence on Friday last from the house of his sister Alice Simpson, the wief of Bryan Sympson, a stockarder; noe company. Friday night he lodged at Kingesclere, from thence to Newberye, and from thence to Thacham, and lodged Saturdaye night in the feildes; Sonday in the cuntrye about Pangborne at Mr. Hide's, and from thence to Theale, and Sonday night in the feildes. Monday in Berkshire about Theale and in the cuntry, and Tuesday morning to Reading to the signe of the Raven, in the company of John Vyner and John Curtys, who mett at Theale, and came to the Raven, and being drinking ij or iij pottes of beer the Constables came and apprehended them; noe goodes; his wief dead. Not this haulf yere in Oxfordshiere. Not in the gaole synce last Assises, but the last weeke on Saturday was senight, and there mett with his freind Curtys, and stayd there an hower or two, and as touchinge the canvas sheete and white stockyns and shirt, he saith it was his owne, for he bought the sheete of a traveller by the way and cost ij*s*. On Monday was senight. Roger Lee sent to gaole.

[p. 213.] The confession of John Vyner taken at Reading.

Saith he dwelleth at Currevill in Somersettshiere: there was borne and liveth there by the trade of a kersey wever: and about fortnight past came there hence intending to goe to London to a sister there dwelling in Broad strete, a habb[erdashe]r of small wares (Thomas Cree), he did worke by the waye, and Sonday night lodged with his wief at Spenham land, and until Monday evening stayd (?), and uppon Tuesdaye morning came into this towne to the house where the Constables had him, and in his companye thither there came theise two men nowe in question: he mett with them this side Theale, in the highwaye, upon Mondaye last almost at night, and they all lodged in a hay-reeke all that night, betweene Theale and Reading. He was never in Oxfordshiere: he brought the sheete found about him with him, his mother gave it to him,

Yet presently he said the little fellowe gave him the sheete upon Monday night last; and he sawe noe coverlitt they had about them, nor any other goodes or apparell to his knowledge. Sent to the house of correccion.

Afterwardes, vizt. 18° Augusti, coram predicto Majore, Johanne Saunders, Thoma Turnor et Nicholao Gunter, the said Roger Lee said indeed he sold the sheete found about John Vyner to the said Vyner, for xx*d.* at the hay-reeke.

The confession of John Curtys taken at Reading.

Saith he late dwelt at Newberye, and there was borne, and apprentice to the trade of a broadwever, and synce he was delivered out of the house of correccion at Reading he hath lived at Calne in Wilteshire, with one John Bedford, and about Monday last was senight he came from thence, and spent his tyme in seeking worke, and uppon Friday night last past he came to Reading and lodged at the White Swan, and upon Saturdaye last and Sondaye he spent his tyme in the gaole, and Monday in and about this towne, and towardes night, walking about night [sic] intending to lodge in a hay reeke, mett with theise ij men in question, being strangers to him; for he never sawe them nor either of them; he was not in Oxfordshiere theise iiij^or yeres. He saith he borrowed a horseman's coate, color greenishe, of a waynman by the waye, betwixt Marleboroughe and Hungerford, and upon Saturday night last he carryed the coate to Twiford and there delivered it to the wayneman agayne. He knoweth the said Roger Lee, and hath byn acquaynted with him haulf a dussen yeres, and haveing mett togither they intended to goe to London together, and hath noe acquayntance with the other man, nor knewe him not untill Monday night last. Saith he hath noe other apparell in this towne nor ells where. Hath noe wief. To the house of correccion.

7° Aprilis, 1628. Coram Willelmo Iremonger, Majore.

John Strowd complayneth that upon Saturday night last being the vth of this Aprill he had 3 lambes stollen and carryed awaye out of Westwood feild.

And uppon Sonday night next the Constables and Officers in Readinge makinge searche in suspected howses, they founde in the dwelling house of one John Cheyney in Reading, nere the House of Correccion, parte of the legg of a lambe and the liver and lightes ready drest, and certen sheepes' wooll in the oven there.

And in the house of Frauncis Abrey they found 7 quarters of lambe ready cut out in quarters to be drest, and a parte of the appurtenances of lambe ready sodd.

And at the same tyme and searche in the house of one Anthony Cherrey they found 7 quarters of lambe cutt out in quarters ready to be drest, and in the house 13 lambes' feete, and in the garden and hogstye 5 sheepe skyns, and iiij^or^ lambe skyns, and 3 lambes' feete.

Richard Cheyney, Richard Tue, Richard Carter, Bartlemewe Abrey.

The confession of William Dolman.

Saith his daughter Cicely Dolman dwelleth and lodgeth with Agnes Holmes, widowe, next house to the said [John] Cheyney, and hath said often-tymes to her father that she did mistrust that the said Cheyney did use some indirect meanes to live, by reason he did use to come in and goe out late in the night tymes, and that he never was at any feast with the said Cheyney, but onely at the eating of a goose, whiche he and his brother did eat at Cheyney's house the last sommer.

The confession of John Poles.

He saith he knoweth John Cheyney, Frauncis Abrey, and Anthony Cherrey, but he never was at any bankett or feast with any of them, neither knoweth of any lambes or sheepe, mutton or lambe, that any of them bought or sould, or stole, and as touching the wooll in his house saith his wife did gather it in the feildes.

[p. 298.] At the same tyme. The examynacion of John Cheyney.

Saith he hath lived in Reading ix yeares, or thereaboutes, by the labour of a brickmaker, and uppon Saturdaye last did worke with John Frauncis, the gardyner, and on Saturdaye night he himself, in the company of Frauncis Abrey and Anthony Cherrey, went in to Tilehurst feildes of purpose to take and fetche each of them a lambe, and in the feildes they tooke eache of them one lambe, killed them and brought them home, and in their cominge home they tooke another lambe of Goodman Bristowe's, and Francis Abrey and Anthony Cherrey had that lambe; they carryed them home in sackes all killed. And further saith he was never at any feast or bankett in their company, nor at any tyme partaker with them in the stealinge of any thinge, but onely one sheepe, whiche they 3 did take out of Mr. Hide's fold, about 4 weekes past. And as touchinge the wooll found in his house, saith it was the wooll of that sheepe whiche they had of Mr. Hide's, and the rest he and his wief bought at severall tymes; and the skyn he cast into the brooke. He cast awaye his lambe skyn.

The examinacion of George Grimer, a habberdasher, taken in Reading.

Saith his name is George Grimer, dwellinge in Lond[on], in White Chapple, and there liveth as a journeyman with his father, William Grimer, a habberdasher, and hath byn from his father haulf a yere or more. And in this haulf yere last he hath byn in Gloucestershier at a towne called Tewkesberye, and there hath wrought with one William Wooddes, a habberdasher. And about Friday last he came from Tewkesbery and lodged at Cicester, and from thence to Highworth on Saturdaye, and from thence to Benson with carryers, and from Benson to Wallingford Monday night, and there at the signe of the White Horse he lodged, and the next morninge, beinge Tuesday, he went of his owne free-will to the Mayour, because his host at the White Horse had told him there was enquiry made after him, being one of them that put breeches to making. He had noe company of his acquayntance from Tewkesbery to Benson. The cause of his goeing from Benson to Wallingford was to fetche a paire of breches he left at a taylour's house in Wallingford to be made for him about Christmas last. It was a sad couler broadcloth, whiche he bought of a souldyer at Wallingford, for whiche he gave him ij*li.* of tobacco at the same house, called the White Horse. And saith that William Edwardes, a hat-dresser came into that house the next morning, and being strang[ers] one to another he staied not the drinking above ij cupps of bere; but there were iij or iiij^{or} other men at that tyme in that house, but their names he knoweth not. And further saith that there was one Robert Webbe, as he thinketh, that did put clothes to making at that tyme at the same taylour's in Wallingford, and he bought the cloth of the same souldyer. And saith he was in Reading about a few dayes be[fore] Christmas last, but in what house and in what compa[ny] he denyeth to answere, but saith himself is called George Jacob and by other names, and that he hath heard of Robert Mindgeham, and denieth further to aunswere. Sent to the House of Correccion for vag[rancy] in Readinge. Afterwardes he was sent to gaole for suspition, and he brake the gaole and ran awaye.
